Venerable Members of the Fraternity
Hosts at the Ebbitt.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL MILES PRESENT

Senator Gallinger Makes Eloquent
Appeal for Isthmian Canal.

SCHLEY'S NAME CHERED

The members of the Masonic Veterans Association of the District of Columbia last night, at the Ebbitt House, enjoyed the twenty-fourth annual dinner of their organization. Around the prettily decorated tables the big dining hall were gathered the Masons who have been prominent in the fraternity for the last decade. Membership in the veteran association is only granted to those who have been entered apprentices for a period of twenty-one years or more.

The dinner was marked by the presence of a large number of distinguished men, the utterance of addresses, patriotic sentiments, and a general feeling of good fellowship.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, in responding to the toast, "Our Country," struck the keynote of the spirit of the Masonic veterans, and his tribute to America was constantly interrupted by bursts of enthusiastic applause. Senator Gallinger turned for a minute from the country to its capital city, and declared that Washington should one day regret that it had not been in all the world. The Masons applauded the statesman to the echo.

Admiral Schley Sends Regrets.

When it was announced that a letter of regret had been received from Admiral Schley the company listened intently, and when the last sentence of the communication had been read by Sir Knight George Gibson, one of the stewards of the association, there was a prolonged demonstration by plaudits and cheers.

The patriotism of the Masons and their guests found vent again later in the evening when Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the United States army, appeared in the banquet hall. General Miles had been invited as a special guest of honor, but on account of prior engagements was unable to be present until the banquet was nearly concluded. The general was warmly compelled to make a brief speech in response to the applause. He said he appreciated the honor of meeting the veteran Masons, and regretted that it had been impossible for him to be present with them throughout their annual dinner.

Simon Wolf, vice president of the Masonic Veterans Association, acted as toastmaster. He first proposed a toast "To our dead," which was drunk in silence. Mr. Wolf then referred to the fact that at the dinner of the organization one year ago was the first regular toast of the evening was to the President of the United States, William McKinley, "but an assassin's bullet," he said, "had cut short a life of wonderful usefulness." Mr. Wolf paid a tribute to Mr. McKinley's character, and said that he was generally beloved by his countrymen. However, he declared, it would not do to live in the past. The people must ever be alert to the future. In Theodore Roosevelt, he declared, the nation had a worthy successor to Mr. McKinley, and so he proposed a toast to "The President of the United States." The company drank the toast standing.

Senator Gallinger Speaks.

The toast, "Our Country," was then proposed, and the toastmaster introduced Senator Jacob H. Gallinger to respond to it. Senator Gallinger said that America presented a wonderful field for study. The growth of the country had been stupendous. There was nothing ever like it in the world before. He declared he had recently looked upon the steps of the Capitol and seen a striking and indisputable fact in the incomparable record of American progress. He gave a few instances showing the perfection of our government, the perfection of our education, the perfection of our food stuffs in America compared with other parts of the world.

The most striking figures quoted by the senator were to the effect that America spends on education nearly 50 per cent of the amount expended for that purpose in the other world.

"As long as these conditions continue, especially the expenditure of such large sums on the education of the people, no one need fear for the future of the country," he said. "The pessimist was always abroad in the land, and forevermore predicting evil. It is today the prediction of the United States could not possess colonies nor govern them. But we have got the colonies," declared Senator Gallinger, "and we are going to keep them. We are going to give the people of our insular possessions a government that will lift them from their past state and make them an enlightened people. The past history of the country is but a foretaste of what we who are here tonight will live to see it, not alone the great republic, but the greatest military and naval power as well."

Isthmian Canal Assured.

"We are going to build up our army and navy. We are going to lay a Pacific cable. We are going to build an isthmian canal. I care not whether it shall be a Nicaraguan or a Panama canal. The temper of the people demands that this waterway to connect the Atlantic and Pacific shall be built, and it will be built by American capital, by American labor, and be truly American in every way. This capital city, beautiful as it is today, will be the most beautiful capital of the world. The American people are rich and patriotic. They are interested in their capital city, and will be glad to contribute their share toward beautifying it."

Other Toasts.

The toast "The Grand Lodge of the District" was responded to by Mr. George H. Walker, the deputy grand master, the grand master being detained by illness in his family. Harry Standford, grand high priest, responded to the toast "The Grand Royal Arch Chapter." Others who spoke briefly late in the evening were J. H. Rogers, grand commander of Knights Templar, and George Gibson, grand commander of Knights Templar. During the evening singing was rendered by Mr. C. W. Hancock and Mr. J. Henry Kater.

Gallinger of New Hampshire, Senator Warren D. Cutler of Maryland, George H. Walker, deputy grand master of the Grand Lodge; Knights Templar, right eminent commander of Knights Templar, and George Gibson, grand commander of Knights Templar.
